Homey furniture, artisanal cheese plates, pizzas and over-roasted chicken – Nolita House hardly sounds like a decadent hangout for the hip cocktail-drinking set. And yet, the space that originally housed the Knitting Factory pours perfect cocktails and attracts a wide array of local lookers and interested outsiders NoLiTa – North of Little Italy - being the new SoHo didn't you know. Take a cosy corner table, order up some home-cooked food and choose from a plethora of drinks that include the London Calling house special: a rollicking mix of champagne, brandy and maraschino cherries. Cocktails tend to be named on a rock n roll theme, although the fine wines and beers are more traditional.
